NEWPORT DAILY NEWS.

THURSDAY, August 26, 1867.

AFFAIRS AT WASHINGTON.

Reports from the National Capitol indicate want of harmony between the President and the new Secretary of War, and it is evident that Mr. Johnson has gained nothing in putting Gen. Grant in the place of Mr. Stanton. It is understood that the General considers the order to stem Hancock a direct insult to himself, and a usurpation of the powers conferred upon him as General-in-Chief, by act of Congress. These powers he very properly declines to yield, as he recognizes his responsibility not only to the President but also to Congress. In this the new Secretary is right and will have the support of the country.

Mr. Johnson is yet evidently of the opinion that the policy of reconstruction is to be dictated from the Executive Mansion rather than from the halls of legislation. He set out to be an autocrat in this matter, and though defeated at every point in the issue between himself and Congress cannot consent to accept the situation and act simply the part of an executive officer. In calling Gen. Grant to his aid he has made a grievous mistake, which has been doubled already discovered. Rumor says he will speedily relieve the present Secretary and appoint a more willing tool, that will not hesitate to do his bidding. At all events, things at Washington are in a generalized condition, and it is not easy to see how the President can escape from his present embarrassment.

Since the above was in type the telegraph informs us that at an interview between the President and Gen. Grant the difficulties were adjusted and harmony restored.

Letter from Maine.

WASHINGTON CO., Me.

Aug. 20, 1867.

EDITOR DAILY NEWS.—Far from the point at which I write, to the border line between the United States and the British province of New Brunswick is but a few miles. The section is one devoted almost exclusively to the manufacture of lumber. Agriculture is a secondary interest, although it is coming more into notice and receiving more attention since the prospects of a continued supply of timber have begun to be somewhat doubtful. It is a splendid country for grass, potatoes and oats. Wheat also does well when the frosts do not come too early for its maturity. Such crops of the first three products named above as are harvested here I have rarely witnessed elsewhere.

The water power in this region is immense and not half employed. The surface being hilly, and in some parts mountainous, numerous lakes and rivers are formed, the former serving as reservoirs for the latter, and these make their circuitous routes through long distances to the sea. All the spindles of the world might be carried by the water of Maine. It is now used almost exclusively for the manufacture of lumber, by which the people have hitherto lived and fortunes have been made. This is especially true of the eastern portion of the State.

If you wish to see pretty villages of the real New England type, you may find them scattered all along the coast and interior of Maine. You can also find those pretty ornaments of village life that the poets and letter writers are always telling of. The city young gents who make occasional tours hitherward or meet one young ladies on their occasional visits to the cities, are wise enough to discover the charms of the village belles and make their way "down east" to "ack mamma." Many a drawing room in Boston and New York is presided over by ladies who have been spirited away from here, and, judging by the usual indications, there are others going in the same way.—The counting room in all parts of the land, the professorships in colleges and schools are continually drawing upon the population, and the officers and sailors in every ocean and merchants in all cities, as well as every other occupation, are largely supplied from here; and there are so many of the race sort left that the enterprise and progress of the State seems not to be arrested, but is rather on the increase.

I need not tell you of the magnificent opportunities for fishing and hunting, as splendid drives over the best of roads or the pleasure to be derived from the cultivated society which the schools develop. The public school system has long been cherished, and a system of academies has been incorporated among the State institutions from the beginning of its political existence. By these means, the general education has been kept at a very creditable and pleasing grade.

In politics there is a larger democratic influence than the Daily News prefers.—The State elections occur in two or three weeks and the two parties are mustering their forces for the conflict, which does not promise to be very fierce. Except in a few cases of Representatives, it is conceded that the Republicans will have everything their own way. Yet in those instances, the Democrats are as anxious to secure the places as if the general issue were in doubt.

Gen. Sheridan, in a letter, thinks the future prosperity of Louisiana beyond question and assures capitalists that the bonds recently issued have ample security. Mr. Johnson by seeking to defeat reconstruction, may succeed in undermining that security, which is mainly due to the wise administration of the commander he has removed.

Specials from Washington have the following:

The order transferring Hancock to the 4th District is not yet promulgated by Grant, and has not, therefore, taken effect. On receipt of this order, Grant wrote another letter to the President. Grant regards the last order of the President as entirely superseding General Order No. 7, including his instructions to General Thomas, and there is little doubt that a serious difference, not to say conflict, of views occurred between the President and Grant.—The situation of matters between the Executive Mansion and the War Department is exceedingly delicate.

Aquatic Agricultural Fair.

The attendance at the Fair grounds was not as large as in some former years, though the numbers in attendance was quite respectable. The display of fruits and vegetables—usually one of the chief attractions, was not as large as heretofore, owing doubtless to the early date of the exhibition. These not having had opportunity for maturing. The ladies department was quite creditable to those having it in charge, and to the several contributors, though if a greater number should bring forth their handiwork the hall would have been rendered still more attractive.—Mr. Robert Wilson of this city had a fine display of flowers and plants in pots, which added much to the beauty of the hall. They were from his green-house on Ayrshire St. Mrs. Livesey presented some fine oil paintings and there were various specimens of curious and useful workmanship from other hands. As our time in the hall was limited we had no opportunity for obtaining the names of contributors, though there were several whom it would be just to mention in this connection.

Outside the display was not large, but the quality was excellent. It is seldom that better sleep are offered in competition than those of Thomas B. Baldwin, G. C. Hazard, and P. T. Sherman. As usual there was a very fine display of working oxen and fat cattle. We were pleased to see our neighboring island of Providence represented by a fine specimen of Ayrshire and other cattle from the farm of Mr. H. C. Wheeler. A number of the animals shown here were entered for premiums at the New England Fair in Providence next week, and they will prove formidable competitors even in so large an exhibition.

The annual address was by Gen. C. C. Van Zandt of this city. Though having had but a very brief notice the speaker gave an interesting and instructive address on labor, a subject which it is true, but treated in a manner that made it appear as fresh as though never discussed before. We have never heard an address at any Agricultural Fair that seemed to give better satisfaction than this. It is the second time the General has been called upon to do this duty, and we recommend the committee to try him again.

The Claudeot gotten up by Capt. Vans was in that enterprising best style, and judging from appearances at the table, was fully appreciated. It was served up at about two o'clock and was well received by the audience.

We are more than ever convinced that it is the true policy of the society to remove from the present location to the line of the rail road. The premises now occupied could doubtless be disposed of for a sum near the cost and the increased attendance that would be secured by the transfer would in a very short time pay all the expenses attending the removal. The change would infuse new life into the society and be of incalculable advantage to all concerned.

We suggest that this matter be discussed and carefully considered before the time arrives for another exhibition.

News Miscellany.

Immense swarms of locusts appeared in the vicinity of the City of Ellsworth, Kansas, on Monday, and moved in a southeasterly direction.

Three hundred and thirty miles by chariot have occurred in the Indian Territory, south of Kansas. Thirty-seven per cent. of the population of Fort Gibson have died of it. At Fort Arbuckle forty soldiers and seventy-five Indians have succumbed to it.

Charles Dickens will give readings in Boston the first two weeks in December at Tremont Temple. In this period he will appear six, and perhaps eight evenings. He leaves England in October. Mr. Dickens will not fail to produce a sensation.

There is to be a vigorous contest in New Jersey this fall. The Republicans generally give a hearty support to the platform of impartial suffrage, but it is said that the only dissenters in the ranks are, singularly enough, the Quakers, who are reluctant to admit the enfranchisement of the blacks.

Independent colored candidates for Congress have offered themselves to the voters of Georgia, and it is probable that they will be supported by a portion of the whites.

THE SINKS LAKE.—The Sentinel, published at Jacksonville, Oregon, of the 12th, thus says:

"Several of our citizens returned last week from a visit to the great Sunken Lake, situated in the Cascade Mountains, about seventy-five miles northeast from Jacksonville. This lake rivals the famous valley of Styx, the Sabor. It is thought to average two thousand feet down to the water all around. The walls are almost perpendicular, running down into the water, and having no bottom. The depth of the water is unknown, and its surface is smooth and mirrored, and it lies so far below the surface of the mountain that the air currents do not affect it. Its length is estimated at twelve miles, and its breadth at ten."

"No living man ever has, and probably never will be able to reach the water's edge."

"It lies silent, still and mysterious in the bosom of the 'leaving hills,' like a huge well scooped out by the hands of the giant genii of the mountain in unknown ages gone by, and around it the principal forest watch and ward are keeping. The visiting party fired a rifle several times into the water, at an angle of forty-five degrees, and were able to deviate several seconds of time from the report of the gun until the ball struck the water. Such seems incredible, but it is vouch'd for by some of our most trusty worthy citizens. The lake is certainly a most remarkable curiosity."

The Hon. E. B. Washburne, member of Congress from Illinois, who has been absent in Europe for the last six months, arrived in Washington on Sunday, and is the guest of Gen. Grant. He says that he is of the opinion that the first business that will be done at the next meeting of Congress will be to prepare articles of impeachment against President Johnson. He thinks it the only way to save the country.

There will be a great treat at the Atlantic House to-morrow evening: Mr. G. Schlegel's Band attached to the Hotel, will give a Concert and Hop, for their benefit. As we never had here a better musical organization and as the guests at the Hotel are much pleased with their performances we doubt not their success.

PHENOMENAL.—The friends of James H. Wilson Esq. will be pleased to hear that he is in Paris in good health, and enjoying his residence in Europe very highly. Mr. Wilson is making great proficiency in his favorite study of music, and is already counted among the first in his profession.

PERSONAL.—We regret to be compelled to announce the death of Prof. H. D. Dunn of Brown University, at his father's residence in this city, yesterday. He was born on a visit and died quite suddenly with paralysis on the brain.

Professor Dunn was a native of Newport, being the eldest child of Dr. T. O. Dunn, who entered Brown University at a very early age, and was graduated with the highest honors of his class, in 1813. After serving for a short time tutor, he pursued his theological studies at Princeton, winning there the same distinction as a scholar which has attended his college course. He was afterwards settled as a pastor of a Presbyterian church, near Philadelphia. In the year 1851 he was called to the chair of Rhetoric and English Literature, in Brown University, a position which, until the day of his lamented decease, he continued to fill with the most eminent ability and success.

LYON'S

PERIODICAL DROPS!

THE GREAT FEDERAL REBEL.

EDY FOR IRISH-IRISH TIES.

I tested these Drapery in my own practice for a year, and do not hesitate to say, that no tie has been developed by medical research, that has a place among the ties of the world. It is the result of a careful study of all the ties in the market. In all recent cases it never fails to win the admiration of the best judges.

It is a most powerful and positive tie, and is easily fastened, and may be used at all times, except when specially forbidden by directions.

They have been extremely popular in the medical profession, and are now being worn by nearly every man over 30 years old.

The tie is made of fine Irish Linen.

I am sorry to inform that the tie has been discontinued.
